

Karissa Wedd

Karissa Wedd

Karissa Wedd began water skiing with her family in her hometown of Port Coquitlam, BC. Her brother started competing first, and when she saw how fun it was, she wanted to join in.

Karissa's greatest influence in water skiing is Britta Llewellyn, as she looks up to her physical and mental strengths. According to Karissa, her greatest strengths are staying positive, and always seeing the brighter side of things.

Karissa was on the National Water Ski Team for 5 years competing in jump and slalom. Her career highlights include a fifth place finish in jump at the 2003 World Championships, becoming the Pan American Games Jump Champion and jump record holder in 2003, a bronze medal in jump at the 2002 Pan American Championships, becoming the Jr. Masters Jump Champion in 1999, becoming the Jr. Girls Jump Champion at the 1998 Junior World Championships as well as the Jr. Girls Jump Champion at the 1998 Pan Am Championships. Karissa was also the Canadian Open Women jump record holder from 2000-2003 as well as the Girls 3 Canadian jump record holder from 1996-1999.
